

Re-elect

Les AuCoin[☆]

Our new kind of Congressman.

Named one of Oregon's five "Outstanding Young Men" by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

First Democrat ever elected to Congress from our First District.

Strong vote for Oregon on the Housing and Merchant Marine Committees.

Chosen "Outstanding Democratic Freshman" when first elected to Oregon Legislature; elected House Majority Leader in second term.

Three-time national award-winning journalist—cited by "Time—Life—Newsweek" magazines.

Business experience as administrator for a major architectural firm.

Young family man: 33, residence in Forest Grove, married to the former Susan Swearingen of Bend, children Kelly and Stacy.

Oregon-born (Redmond), and educated (Pacific University).

Re-elect Les AuCoin

Because Les is one of the new breed of Congressmen. The kind that's sweeping out cobwebs, breaking up cronyism, putting the brakes on reckless government spending, putting Congress to work—for you.

AuCoin is one of the new kind of Congressmen who deliver. He sponsored laws to halt "tight money" and high interest rates, to stimulate housing and create jobs. Laws to save Oregon's filbert research project; to get a 200-mile offshore fishing limit.

AuCoin is one of the new kind of Congressmen who fights runaway spending. He sponsored bills to put all government spending on a "show-results-or-else" basis; voted to halt foreign aid to countries which refuse to pay debts to America... debts now totaling $600 million.

AuCoin is one of the new kind of Congressmen who keep on opening-up government. With a 100% voting record on Common Cause and League of Women Voters issues, he helped break the ancient Congressional seniority system and stopped secret meetings, sponsored a bill to expose conflicts of interest, and voted to put teeth into the House Ethics Committee.

AuCoin is one of the new kind of Congressmen who voted to close $3 billion in tax loopholes. He's fighting for jobs, not handouts. He's working for Congressional checks-and-balances over federal agency rule-makers. Voting to stop the waste in Pentagon spending.

A breath of fresh air in Washington, D.C.

Re-elect the new kind of Congressman.
Our kind.

Les AuCoin.
