

THEY BLAZED THE WAY FOR OREGON CIVILIZATION

PIONEERS of early Oregon who chummed with the friendly Indians and placated or conquered the hostiles, that the vast empire of potential resources might be opened up to future generations as home and source of wealth. Veterans of Indian wars meeting here today are recounting the deeds of old that made possible the state's enormous development. Above, from left, B. F. McKee of Woodburn, here since 1850; W. D. S. Stillwell of Tillamook, '44; J. Cy Nelson, Yamhill county, '44a J. R. Boyd of Canby, '52. Center, W. C. Hembree of McMinnville, '43; Edward Wicks of The Dalles, '50; J. A. Burk of Lewisville, Wash., '52. Below, D. A. McKee of Woodburn, '50; Curys Walker, Albany, '38.
