CHEMAWA CEMETERY

This month marks the Chemawa Indian School's 113th anniversary as an institution, this Fall its 108th anniversary in Salem. Originally located in Forest Grove, the school began operations 25 Feb. 1880 through the efforts of Lt. M.C. WILKINSON of the 3rd U.S. Infantry, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and a hurriedly-assembled construction crew. In twelve weeks the main building, 32'x60' of two stories, was erected to accommodate the first class at the "Indian vocational and normal school": 17 students from the Puyallup reservation at Puget Sound and one Nesqually boy.

The school continued at Forest Grove until Spring of 1885 when a new site was selected five miles north of Salem for the training school. David BREWER, a member of the first class at Forest Grove and now a disciplinarian there, left for Chemawa 17 Mar. 1885 with a work group of 46 boys to begin building the new school and to establish the gardens.

By October 1st of 1885, the student body was comfortably installed at the new location and classes began at Chemawa Indian Training School.

Now considered the oldest and largest federal school of its kind in the United States, its operation has been virtually continuous (save for a brief closure in the Spring of 1933) and its graduates number in the tens of thousands.

Some of the students at the Indian school, however, were not able to graduate -- their education and lives cut short by disease or accident. These sleep now in the cemetery adjoining the school.

Listed in the 1978 "Oregon Cemetery Survey Book" as located in T7S, R3W, Sec. 1, the cemetery must be approached through the main entrance to the school on Chemawa Road. Roughly a half acre in size, the burial ground is fairly well tended, but is full of low growing poison oak. Sheep are regularly pastured there to keep weeds and brush under control. While the Cemetery is listed as having been established in 1885, an ornamental archway at the entrance proclaims the date of 1886 for its beginning. Cassius (or Caesar) BROWN's obituary cites his death as occurring in November, 1885, but no gravesite is designated for his burial. The earliest marked burial is for Julia LAPP (JOPPS) who died in Feb. of 1886.

Over the more than a century of its existence, the cemetery has seen repeated attempts to clear it of brush and poison oak, leading to a 1960 draconian measure: leveling the area of markers and vegetation in order to ease further maintenance of the graveyard. At this time, cement bars affixed with heavy gauge copper plates were placed at each grave listed on a master plat plan created in 1940 by W.B. SHOWALTER. Students at Chemawa completed the project.

Of the over 200 graves at the cemetery, about 193 are identified; not all are students' graves, as there are occasional burials for employees, former students, or members of employee's families. Nor does the cemetery represent all the deaths occurring at Chemawa through the years since in several instances the deceased was shipped home for burial. (A list of these Chemawa deaths appears at the end of the known burials.)

and Keithel Thiessen. Jean Custer took on the monumental task of collecting death certificates and newspaper obituaries; Sue Bell searched the microfilm records in Seattle. Yet, despite so many people working on the project, there are a great many details still missing -- perhaps because some of the death dates are incorrect and these cannot be checked against the Oregon Death Index, as the authorities at Chemawa were not required to inform the Board of Health of Indian deaths. (If anyone has further information on these people, we'd be delighted to hear from you!)

By carefully comparing lists of pupils in censuses and the "Indian School Register," as well as records for local funeral homes, some added detail can be provided on the lives of these former Chemawa students. Various Salem newspapers were researched to verify dates and details; in addition, "The Chemawa American," a school publication, was also consulted for notices of student deaths. Since the only detail on each gravemarker in the Cemetery is name and date of death, any further data collected appears in parentheses. For purposes of identifying the sources, each is assigned a number:

1. "Chemawa Register of Pupils Admitted 1880-1927 (Roll P2008, National Archives, Pacific NW Region, Seattle)
2. Rigdon Colonial Chapel records
3. "Oregon Statesman," "Daily Oregon Statesman," etc., Salem
4. "Capital Journal," Salem
5. "The Chemawa American," Chemawa
6. Oregon Death Certificates

The listings are by row, beginning at the northwest corner of Chemawa Cemetery and running south. We acknowledge with thanks the cooperation and assistance of Charles Holmes in compiling these records.

"Reports reached the city yesterday that there were about sixty cases of measles among the pupils of the United States Indian training school at Chemawa, but reports are that all are doing nicely and that the pupils who are attacked or exposed are under strict quarantine, and there is little danger of the trouble spreading from there. However, it is as well that the fact that the disease is epidemic there should be known, which knowledge lessens the liability to exposure." #3, 8 Jan 1905, 1:4

 "His Life Work Ended - Elijah Brown, Editor of Chemawa American, is Dead-- Was a Graduate of the Salem Indian Training School, and Studied at Carlisle and Haskell.--Elijah Brown, editor of the Chemawa American, the paper published at the Chemawa Indian Training School, and a graduate of that Institution, died at Chemawa yesterday afternoon, after an illness of two weeks, of Bright's Disease.

Deceased was an Indian of the Mission tribe of Southern California, where he was born, removing later, with his parents to The Dalles. He came to the Chemawa school a number of years ago, and graduated from the institution, proving himself a most industrious and apt pupil. After graduating from Chemawa he went to Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and the Haskell Institute at Lawrence, Kansas, to pursue his studies, where he fitted himself for a literary career. Later he went to San Francisco, and secured employment as a reporter on one of the leading daily papers of that city, and many interesting articles descriptive of the Indian villages and tribes of California were from his pen, and were read widely and with great interest. But having grown to manhood in Oregon's balmy climate, he longed for the winter rains, the splendid summer weather and a sight of the verdure-clad hills and the majestic snow-peaks of "Old Webfoot," and resigning his position in San Francisco where success had smiled upon him, he returned to Oregon.

Arrived here he took charge of the "American," the paper published at Chemawa, and conducted it with ability and to the credit of himself and the school. He became an important factor in the school, and was regarded as one of the most useful men around the institution.

Deceased was a devoted member of the M.E. church, and for many years was president of the Y.M.C.A. at Chemawa. He joined the Salem Press Club at its organization last year, and was one of its most enthusiastic members. He was a fair sample of what education will do for an Indian, and was popular among all who formed his acquaintance.

The funeral will be held at Chemawa at 3 p.m. today, and interment will be had in the Chemawa cemetery." #3, 29 Aug 1901, 5:3

During the winter about a half dozen deaths have occurred. The last one was on Friday, being that of Frank LaPLANT, from fever. The one dying next before him was Nettie Freddie, who came to the school from Yakima. The health of the institution is now showing improvement. The authorities of the school apprehended them at Tualatin, and after being captured, while walking along the streets of Tualatin, Charles Walton, an Alaskan, one of the number, broke and ran. He made through the brush for the Tualatin river, where, finding an old boat, he attempted to cross, paddling with his hands. When half way across, the boat sank, and he attempted to swim ashore, but being weighted with clothing and heavy shoes, was unable to do so and was carried to the bottom. His body was recovered, but life was extinct. The coroner was notified, but said an inquest was unnecessary. His body was returned to the school Sunday

"Chemawa Pupils Victims of Treacherous Willamette--They Were in Bathing Near Lincoln While On a Picnic--Were Good Swimmers--Another Girl, Who Was in Danger, Rescued By Heroic Efforts.--A tragedy, doubly sad because attendant upon the festivities of the nation's greatest holiday, occurred yesterday at Lincoln, at 1:30 o'clock at a point about six miles north of Salem when Anna JESSEN, aged 17, and Jennie SHUTSHAGEN, aged 15 years, students at Chemawa, were drowned in the Willamette River. Another girl Mary CRIDER, narrowly escaped being a third victim, but was rescued before life was extinct. The bodies of the other two girls were found at 4:30 and for four hours heroic measures were used to restore consciousness to the unfortunate young women. Until 8:30 last evening Dr. W.S. MOTT, of Salem, Dr. TUCKER, of Chemawa and Miss BAUGHMAN, a trained nurse of the school, labored in a fruitless effort at resuscitation.

The terrible accident came when the big Fourth of July girls' picnic from Chemawa was at the merriest. The boys from the school having proceeded to this city for the celebration, the officers at Chemawa granted permission to the girls of the institution to spend the day at the river, some three miles from the school. They were accompanied by several teachers and employes, but the men of the party had repaired to a point further down the river, in order to allow the girls the pleasure of a swim, unobserved.

The girls, who were fair swimmers, had sported about in the water for some time when the three who lost their lives, were caught by the treacherous undercurrent and borne down rapidly. Their cries caused teachers and students to attempt rescue, but it was several minutes before the arrival of John SPONG, a farmer living near by, and Messrs. BREWER and COOPER, employes at the school, who had accompanied the party, arrived on the scene and together with a force of boys from the school, began to drag the river in a systematic manner.

Their search was not rewarded until 4:30 p.m. some three hours after the girls had been drowned, when all efforts at resuscitation failed. The bodies were recovered at the very place where they sank, not having washed more than a few feet down.

Miss Jessen was a native of Capalla, Alaska, while Miss Shutshagen came from Juneau, Alaska, and both had been students at the school for about five years. An odd coincidence was that the father of the Shutshagen girl met death by drowning several years ago in Alaska.

The first news of the tragedy was brought to this city by Elmer SORAHAN a student who leaped upon one of the horses that had taken the picnickers to the river, and made a wild ride to this city in search of Assistant Superintendent CAMPBELL, who was looking after the squad of boys from the school. The event cast a gloom over the day for the students, officers and teachers, and no further celebrating was done." - #3, 5 Jul 1907, 1.

SOME EARLY HISTORY
EFFORT MADE IN THE LEGISLATURE OF OREGON TERRITORY
To Change the Name of Salem--The Bill Passed the Lower House--
Failed in Council.

Few people know that efforts were once made in the Oregon Legislature (territorial) to change the name of Salem, but this is the fact. A bill to that effect was introduced in 1853, and passed the House, changing the name to Bronson. When the measure came up in the Council (Senate), it seems the name in the bill was found to be Chemawa, instead of Bronson, and the bill, after creating quite a little contest, was killed. The journal of the Legislative session on that subject shows that even in those days sharp practice was engaged in at times.

Gov. T.T. GEER, has compiled the journal entries relating to this proposed change for the Statesman, and they are given below:

HOUSE.

Saturday, December 17, 1853

Mr. PEEBLES presented a petition of J.L. PARRISH and others, to change the name of Salem to Chemawah.

On motion of Mr. HUMASON, the petition was referred to the committee on corporations.

Monday, December 19, 1853

Mr. COMY presented a petition of R.C. GEER and others, praying the Legislative Assembly to change the name of Salem to Thurston or Valena. Referred to committee on corporations.

Wednesday, December 21, 1853

Mr. HADLEY, from the committee on corporations, to whom was recommitted the several petitions to change the name of Salem, reported a bill--H.B. 18: To change the name of Salem to "Chemawa." Which was read a first time.

Thursday, December 22, 1853

H.B. 18 was read a second time, and, on motion of Mr. Peebles, the bill was referred to a selection committee of three, Messrs. PEEBLES, CHAPMAN and GOFF were appointed said committee.

Friday, Jan. 13, 1854 (Afternoon)

The committee to whom was referred H.B. 18, a bill to change the name of Salem, reported the same back to the House with sundry amendments.

On motion of Mr. Humason, a call of the house was taken and sergeant-at-arms was sent for the absent members.

The amendment to H.B. 18 was taken up, and the motion to adopt the first amendment, viz:

Strike out the word "Chemawa" and insert "Willamette," was lost. 2d. Add to section 2, "or the location of any public or private institution situated in said town of Salem," which was adopted. Mr. Humason offered the following amendment:

Strike out the word "Chemawa" and insert "Bronson" which was adopted.

The bill then came up on its third reading. Mr. Peebles moved to lay the bill upon the table. Which motion was lost. The question then being upon the final passage of the bill and the yeas and nays ordered thereon. A call of the house was ordered and the sergeant-at-arms was ordered to bring in the absent members.

Mr. Peebles moved to strike out "Bronson" and insert "Chemawa."

Which motion was lost. Mr. SMITH moved to strike out "Bronson" and insert "Willametta." Which motion was lost.

The yeas and nays being called for upon the final passage, resulted as follows: Yeas, 13; nays, 10; absent, BOISE, DURHAM, JACKSON--3.

So the bill passed.

COUNCIL

January 19, 1854 (Afternoon 2 p.m.)

AN HEIR TO MILLIONS

A Pendleton Man who has Title to Part of the Site of the City of Louisville

A claimant of a portion of the site of Louisville, Ky., has bobbed up at Pendleton, says the Oregonian. His name is L.S. KIDD, and he is a son of Thomas Kidd, of Missouri City, Mo., who is the father of ten children.

The story goes that years and years ago. Edward and Mary Kidd, the grandfather and grandmother of the Pendleton man, each located a homestead on the site of the city. What was then a rolling prairie is now the heart of Louisville, and is covered with costly edifices.

After the death of the original owners, the family lawyer had quitclaimed the land in small parcels to various purchasers, and on this action the claims of the present owners are based. The new proprietors would probably have remained in undisputed possession had not the son of the lawyer above mentioned stumbled upon the original patent from the government to Edward and Mary Kidd, about a year ago, and sent notice of the fact to their son, Thomas Kidd, an already quite wealthy old gentleman who lives in Missouri City, Mo., and is that father of ten strapping girls and boys, one of whom is L.S. Kidd, of Pendleton. He at once consulted an attorney celebrated for his legal lore, and, after investigating the matter, informed his client that it would be a very easy thing to establish title to the property, which is now valued at nearly $80,000,000. Other lawyers consulted corroborated this opinion.

Mr. Kidd, of Pendleton, is confident that he is not dreaming of impossibilities. The only thing that troubles him is what disposition to make of the money. "I have been a poor, hard-working man during my entire life," he said, "and I have no more idea what to do with $1,000,000 than a cow."

PATTEE, John E-17
 d. 13 Aug 1900
 (Marble headstone)

(age 32 - #2, 2:92)
 "End Came Suddenly--John P. Pattee, carpenter at the Salem Indian Training School, and one of the most efficient and faithful employees of that institution, died at the Florence Sanatorium, in this city, at 4 p.m. yesterday, aged 32 years.

Mr. Pattee had for some time suffered with a tumor on the left leg, just above the knee, and he came to this city, from the school, yesterday afternoon, to have the tumor removed, going to the Florence Sanatorium. Dr. R. CARTWRIGHT performed the operation, but the shock of the operation to the system of the patient appeared to be too great, and he died within a short time.

The remains were promptly conveyed to Rigdon & Clough's undertaking parlors, where they were prepared for burial, and will be taken to Chemawa today, where the funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

John P. Pattee was born at the Cole Creek Indian Agency, South Dakota, his father being a former officer in the United States army, Captain Pattee, and his mother a daughter of a prominent member of the Sioux tribe of Indians. When the boy grew up his father gave him excellent training, sending him first to the Hampton Indian Normal Training School, at Hampton, Virginia, from which institution the young man was graduated with high honors; he was next sent to the Wabash Indiana Agricultural College, and here again he was graduated at the head of his class.

Having been thoroughly fitted for the Government service by the excellent training thus received, the young man applied for and received the appointment as carpenter in the industrial department of the Indian Training School, at the Cole's Creek Agency, South Dakota, where he served for a number of years. Later he was transferred to other schools, and about four years ago he came to Chemawa. Here he has made an excellent record; and he was one of the most highly respected of the teachers of that important institution.

Mr. Pattee was a leader among his race in all that was good and beneficial. Recognizing that industrial education would solve the Indian problem, he was tireless in his efforts towards educating the young men who came under his charge, and he held the love and esteem of each and every one of them. The officers of the institution considered him the most faithful, efficient and competent of the instructors, and his death came as a shock to them, and their grief knew no bounds. Mr. Pattee was a faithful and devoted member of the Episcopal church and was, for the past four years, president of the Chemawa Y.M.C.A., and prominent in the work of that organization. He was a powerful all around athlete, a man of magnificent physical stature, with a body as active and well trained as was his mind, and an excellent mechanic.

Deceased leaves a wife and three children to mourn his untimely demise. He carried a policy on his life for $3000 in the New York Life Insurance Company, having been insured a few years ago by the local agency of the company. The funeral will be held at the Chemawa school, at 2:30 this afternoon, conducted by Rev. John PARSONS, D.D., of the First M.E. church of this city, and doubtless many friends of the school and the deceased from this city will be present to pay their last loving tribute to the memory of one who was loved and respected by all who knew him. Interment will be had in the cemetery at Chemawa." #3, 14 Aug 1900, 2:1-3

TEABO, Joseph M. d. (20 Aug) 1914 "All old-timers will be shocked to learn of the death of Joseph M. Teabo, who for many years was one of us here at the school. Death occurred at his Grand Ponde home of Brights Disease on August 20. The remains were brought to Chemawa for interment. Deceased was married quite a number of years ago to Miss Dolly WIGGINS, who survives him--there were no children. Mr. Teabo was known far and near for his athletic prowess and his musical ability. In every way he was an affable man, kindly to all, and highly esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances. He will long be lovingly remembered by his old-time friends. At present Mrs. Teabo is acting as matron for the small boys of Chemawa and she has the kindly sympathy of all in her great sorrow. #5, Oct 1914, p. 14. VAN TASSEL, Mark J-1

"Mark Van Tassel Drowns At Chemawa--Mark Van Tassel, aged 17, son of Arthur D. Van Tassel, chief engineer at the Indian training school at Chemawa, was drowned last night about half past seven o'clock, in the Willamette near Government slough.

In company with Charles BAISE who is about 18, he went swimming, and as he was just learning to swim he apparently got alarmed when getting beyond his depth. At any rate Baise heard him call for help, and being a fine swimmer, at once went to his assistance. The Van Tassel boy was very large for his age, and Baise was unable to handle him. He was compelled in order to save himself to abandon him, and he sank almost immediately." #4, 4 Aug 1914, 2:5

"Our people were startled on the evening of August 3 by the intelligence that Mark Van Tassel had been drowned while bathing in the Willamette river about Salem. It appears that Mark had gone into the water in company with another young man and the probabilities are that he was seized by cramps. The body was not recovered until the following day and interment was made in the Chemawa cemetery. He was just entering manhood, being about 18 years of age--eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Van Tassel of this place. His untimely demise was a sad blow to the family, who have the sympathy of all." #1, Vol 17, No. 1, Oct. 1914, p. 18 (age 17, b. OH, f: A.D. Van Tassell, m: Jennie S. KELLY, parents b. OH, drowned; Clough - #6, No. 2038)

STROM, Ole

d. 30 Oct 1926
"Olie Strom passed away on Saturday evening, after an illness of exactly three weeks, following an injury received in an accident. The prayers and wishes for his recovery were not confined to Chemawa for inquiries, letters, and flowers were sent from many both far and near. Olie Strom was one of Chemawa's best boys. He stood for right. This ever-present attitude to help, and his smiling countenance, won friends for him wherever he went. The many floral offerings before and after death but feebly showed "how they loved him." Everything within the power of man was done to save him, but God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to call him and we, his friends, tearfully said farewell. Funeral services were held on Monday morning at the undertaker's chapel in town. They were in charge of the freshmen class, of which Olie was president. Joe MATT, as vice-president, presided. The freshmen class attended in a body, as did the football team, of which Olie was captain. His remains were sent to his home in Washington for burial. The spirit of Chemawa on Monday was

TRIPLE BIRTHDAY DINNER

On Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sol DURBIN, a dinner was given in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Fannie MARTIN, aged 71 years, Isaac DURBIN, aged 64 years, and Mrs. C.M. WALKER. Ten tables were required to seat the many guests at the bounteous feast. In preparing the meal a kettle 100 years old, and was brought across the plains by Mr. and Mrs. John Durbin in 1845, was used. "Grandpa" John Durbin, now past 104 years of age, was present. Those participating in the partial family reunion were: Mr. and Mrs. Sol Durbin, Mrs. Fannie Martin, Mrs. Mary STARKEY, Mrs. Daniel Durbin, Mrs. Ruth E. SAYRE and daughter May, Mrs. O.D. HUTTON and daughters, Mabel and Lena, Mrs. Duncan ROSS, Mrs. C.M. WALKER and daughter, Madeline, Mrs. Lewis JERMAN and children, Mr. and Mrs. F.W. Durbin and daughters, Barbara and Maude, Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Durbin, Mr. and Mrs. George FARRELL, Mrs. Minnie BARRETT, Miss Emma ELLAIN, Miss Grace MARTIN, Miss Dell PERKINS, F.M. SMITH, Hal, Sheldon and Chester PERKINS. Mrs. WALKER is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Durbin and is a resident of Rockwell, Gilliam county. She is visiting her parents and grandfather.
